HALTS COMMUNICATION

Telegraph Lines in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania Seriously Crippled—Damage to Lake Ports.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Telegraph service in certain sections of the country is demoralized today as the result of yesterday's storm. The damage to the property of the telegraph companies is estimated at several hundred thousands of dollars. The most serious condition was reported from Ohio and Pennsylvania, which were swept by a severe wind and sleet storm, that carried down many hundred miles of wire.

Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio have been cut off from telegraphic communication since Sunday afternoon. Nearly all the wires running out of Pittsburgh and Youngstown, Pa. were down. Communication from New York and other eastern cities was obtained by making detours of thousands of miles or southern circuits and even then the connections were finally broken.

The wire from the southern part of Canada was reported in bad condition. Large forces of repair men were put to work at midnight Sunday.

Sweeps Lake and Coast.

At the local weather bureau it was stated that considerable damage was done by the storm along the North Atlantic coast, where wires were prostrate and observation stations of the bureau damaged.

Certain of the storm moved from Lake Huron to Lake Erie today although Alpena, Michigan, shared a sixty-mile gale with Buffalo and other Erie ports.

The storm which started in British Columbia last Wednesday, is temporarily over so far as the middle west is concerned, according to the forecast, but another one, now quite as vigorous from the same quarter, is due here next Wednesday.

Today's forecast was couched with many reports missing from the North Atlantic from Great Lakes and parts of the northwest.

Breakwaters Damaged.

$200,000 worth of breakwaters and made land comprising the new Lincoln park harbor were under water and reduced to the condition of an inundated flat by the tremendous surf driven by a fifty mile gale. Piers, sea walls and piling were washed away all along the lake front. The waves which lashed the shore for twenty-four hours.

The surf subsided somewhat today but a heavy sea continued on into the lake. A few vessels left Chicago harbor. A Milwaukee ship, the schooner, a thirty-ton schooner, part of the new harbor project was destroyed and more than that amount of damage was done to shipping.

Deaths.

Two deaths were reported here. Antonio Zuniga and an unidentified man were blown into the Chicago river and drowned.

Pittsburgh Isolated.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—Six in the grasp of the blizzard for twenty-four hours has almost entirely cut off the outside world. Pittsburgh is now a snowed-out city, almost a foot of snow, exerting every effort to keep the thousands of dollars of damage and restore lines of communication and telephone.

All suburban communities are on edge. From telephone communication and this crisis in the city, extending throughout West Virginia, down to Ohio valley and into the eastern part of Ohio.

This morning there was only one late Western Union message from Chicago and one east as far as Atlanta. The Postal Telegraph Company had nothing it could depend on to remain standing and all business was taken up by delay.

Every available line man of both telephone and telegraph companies is being pushed to his utmost endurance to restore normal conditions. Representatives of the companies said it would be weeks before normal conditions could be restored.

Train Stalled.

From Wheeling, W. Va., reports a stalled railroad train are coming in. One of the trains, the Pennsylvania, which left Baltimore, Ohio, for this city at 5:30 this morning, two miles north of Martins Ferry, Ohio, the train plunked into a snow drift and stuck. Several hundred passengers are reported marooned, although relief has been sent from Wheeling.

The entire northern part of West Virginia has under a blanket of snow. Fifteen inches and more and more reports can be gotten from there.

Poles Break.

Western Union officials said that the trouble was principally due to the blowing down of poles. The railroad trains due from the west were checked up from one to seven hours late.

Throughout Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 10.—The disastrous blizzard which swept Michigan and the Great Lakes all yesterday and last night subsided to a degree this forenoon and the weather bureau officials said that a further decrease in wind velocity could be expected before night. Up to this forenoon no very serious vessel accidents had been reported on the lakes, but the property damage done by the storm had reached many thousands of dollars.

Telegraph and telephone companies suffered greatly. Reports from Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Sault Ste. Marie, Alpena, Bay City and Port Huron indicated that the cable was the most severe November blow in many years and every port was crowded with steamers that had hurried into shelter.

Death at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Nov. 10.—One death was caused here by the storm which struck western Wisconsin today after having been reported on the lakes, but the property damage done by the storm had reached many thousands of dollars.

THIEVES ATTEMPT TO ROB TWO HOMES

Fail to Gain Entrance to Winans Residence But Make Big Haul at Home of William Hough.

Two dogs prevented thieves from entering the home of Miss Emma Winans, 209 South Bluff street shortly before seven o'clock Saturday night but William E. Hough arrived at his home, 225 South Division street, at one o'clock and the same night so late to spoil an attempt of robbers to loot his home.

Thieves, thought to be the same men who attempted to rob the home of Miss Winans, succeeded in gaining entrance to the home of William Hough as there was no one home during the evening. Mr. Hough being at work at the Myers Hotel barber shop and his family being out of the city. When Hough returned he found doors had been opened, the men forcing entrance through a storm door to a wood shed in the back of the house and then through the lock to the kitchen door. Every room in the house had been looted, the side-board thoroughly ransacked and bedrooms looted, the thieves evidently picking up anything of value searching for valuables. Nothing was overlooked and burnt matches were found over the floors, showing that the house breakers had knowledge of the layout of the house and were in their work. The list of missing articles given the authorities was as follows: Silver carving set, set of ivory handled silver knives and forks, string of valuable gold beads, string of coral beads, three gold chains, one with heart locket and one with gold cross, three rings, seal, garnet and turquoise and valuable trinkets and pins. It is evident that the men who attempted to rob the Winans home, after being chased away, went to the Hough home and forced their entrance. Police investigation showed that a side window had been tampered with but the window proved too strong for the jimmies.

Both attempts were reported to the police who are making an investigation. Miss Winans saw two men go from the street to the rear door of her home and endeavor to gain admission. Being alone in the house she did not wait to phone for the police but called on the Houghs, housebreakers who fled. The men showed unusual daring for attempting to rob the house at such an early hour and although there are neighbors in the immediate vicinity, they were successful in making their escape.

SENSATIONAL TRIAL
ENDS IN ACQUITTAL OF MENDEL BEILISS

Young Russian Jew Charged With Murder Is Freed by Jury at Kiev—May Come to New York.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Kiev, Russia, Nov. 10.—Mendel Beiliss was acquitted by the jury today.

Review of Case.

The trial of Mendel Beiliss, a Russian of the Hebrew faith, for the alleged murder for purposes of "blood ritual" of Andrew Yushinsky, a Christian lad, began October 8.

The case caused a immense sensation which stirred the whole of Russia and attracted excitement throughout the world. The body of the boy was discovered on March 25, 1911, in a cave in a suburban village outside Kiev. The hands were bound behind the back and there were forty-seven wounds on the body.

Beiliss was shortly afterward arrested and charged with the murder and kept in close confinement until the trial.

During the hearing many medical experts testified, their opinions varying as to the reasons for the crime. Other witnesses threw suspicion on a woman, Vera Fildorovich, alleged to be the harbinger of a band of criminals.

Extensive precautions were taken by the authorities to prevent threatened outrages by members of the society of anti-semites Russians known as the Black Hundreds. The vicinity of the court being surrounded by hundreds of troops during the later days of the trial.

May Come to New York.

New York, Nov. 10.—There had been talk among prominent Jews of New York of bringing Mendel Beiliss to this city on his acquittal. A leader in this movement said today the matter was still under advisement.

Opening of Deer Season Holds Attention Today in Northern Wisconsin.

Consistent Game Belt.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 10.—The wicked whine of high-powered big game guns was heard in the north woods today, the first day of the big game season in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Hunters from all over the state, out of doors, over four hundred leaving Duluth during the night while the Range cities poured hundreds more into the game belt.

Deer from the north today are without mayors, city councils failed to meet, a quarter of the usual quota of physicians is left behind while professional men bankers, lawyers and other workers are viewed with each other in getting first to the runways of the antlered tribes. A near zero temperature met the hunters as they stepped from their trains or boats heavily laden with coats and traps and chairs.

Reports brought in from the woods indicate that deer and moose in plentiful droves await the annual slaughter. Hunters and lumbermen claim that certain parts of Minnesota, especially up Lake Superior's north shore are cut into cross sections by runways.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN IN SOUTH

Writings of Thomas Jefferson Being Quoted in Support of Movement

—Louisiana Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 10.—A government is not yet complete that holds from its most enlightened women what is freely gives its most enlightened men. This quotation from the writings of Thomas Jefferson is plastered on bill boards and blank walls, is on doggers, in show windows and on buttons, and is being thrown on the screens of all moving picture shows in New Orleans today.

The occasion is the opening of the Louisiana equal suffrage convention and a conference of Southern women in the interest of the suffrage movement.

Thomas Jefferson's prestige is so pinnacled in the South that the women decided to feature his view of the suffrage question. For various reasons the South up to the present time has lagged behind all other sections of the country in the battle for equal rights.

The Women of Louisiana have now taken the initiative in a vigorous campaign to secure the ballot rights that are enjoyed by their sisters in many states.

Miss Kate M. Gordon, president of the state suffrage association, has been a power in many aggressive movements and her influence is being exerted in a most determined way.

She is supported by some of the most intelligent and influential women in the state, who hope to influence the legislature to allow Louisiana to be the first of the Southern states to recognize the right of women to vote.

WILSON CLEARS UP
PRESENT ATTITUDE ON MEXICAN CRISIS

Has No Intention of Erasing Situation of Congress or Recognizing Constitutionalists.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 10.—President Wilson discussed the Mexican situation today and cleared the atmosphere of many reports as to the intentions of the United States. He made it clear that he had no intention at present of addressing congress because the situation was not in shape for such action and that while certain representations had been made to the Huerta government no reply had been received. He declared that no time limit had been set for a reply from Huerta.

The president told inquirers he was not ready to discuss recognition of the constitutionalists and that his position to raising the embargo on arms had not been changed.

Considered Plan.

President Wilson, it was learned later today, is giving serious consideration to raising the embargo on arms. In his talks with senators he has been advised by most of them to like the embargo.

Text Received.

The text of the statement given to the diplomatic corps on midnight of Saturday by President Huerta reached here today from Charge O'Shaughnessy. Secretary Bryan would not comment upon it, further than to say last night dispatches from Mexico City described it in general terms.

London, Eng., Nov. 10.—Walter H. Page, United States ambassador, presented to the British foreign office another message from President Wilson, the general effect of which is that under no circumstances will the president recognize Provisional President Huerta or any of his acts.

President Wilson's message is regarded here as in the nature of an indirect refusal to dig for a reply to the British ultimatum. It is a more definite pronouncement from President Wilson, setting forth precisely the steps he proposes to take to enforce his policy before sending a formal reply.

Resent Misrepresentation.

British officials are inclined to resent what they term the persistent misrepresentation of Great Britain's attitude current in the United States. They deny that any British money has been advanced to support Provisional President Huerta.

Find Bones of Man Missing for Year

Skeleton Found in Bayfield County, Minn., Thought to Be That of Adolph, Minn., Farmer.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Duluth, Nov. 10.—The bones of a man found yesterday near Pike river in Bayfield county, Wis., are thought by the police to be those of Adolph Selig, of Adolph, Minn., who mysteriously disappeared last Christmas Eve.

Every circumstance surrounding the disappearance of Selig indicated foul play and this is suspected in the death of the man found near Pike river. The bones were found near the establishment of a fur trader, Amos M. Hanson of Bayfield county.

Selig was living in a farmhouse with his mother, aged 80 years, at Adolph. The night before Christmas he told her he was going out in the barn to watch his stock as a fever storm was raging. So far as can be learned he never

TEACHERS' ELECTION DEVOID OF POLITICS

Square and Fair Fight for Honors is Buell's Characterization of Milwaukee Contest.

"It was a fair and square contest between two able men with no bitter feelings over the result," was Superintendent H. C. Buell's characterization of the election fight between F. F. Leverenz of Sheboygan and C. E. Patzer, candidates for the presidency of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association, which met in Milwaukee last week. The honors went to Patzer. Mr. Buell scouted the idea that either State Superintendent Cary or President Carroll G. Pearce of the Milwaukee Normal school were concerned in the outcome, and declared that the reports of the election as published in the Milwaukee papers were much exaggerated.

The only contest was for the presidency. Following is the list of the association's new officers: President, C. E. Patzer, Milwaukee; first vice president, L. P. Benzert, La Crosse; second vice president, Rosalia Erner, Wausau; third vice president, L. W. Brooks, Racine; treasurer, G. P. Loomis, Waukesha; executive committee, B. O. Kinsman, Whitewater.

Mr. Buell was honored with appointment to several important committees of the association, prominent among them being the committee to provide ways and means for a Wisconsin educational exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exhibition. This committee of five members expects to confer with the state commission with the idea of securing a portion of the state appropriation to be devoted to the school exhibit.

Mr. Buell is also chairman of the committee whose purpose is the organization of a state reading circle for teachers and teachers.

He holds over from last year. He is a member of the committee concerned with the installing of a course on library methods in the normal school course.

NEW CITY TEACHERS TOOK PLACES TODAY

Gertrude Simmons Assumes Instruction at High School, and Miss Bunin at Jefferson School.

Two new instructors were added to the list of Janesville school teachers today, when Miss Gertrude Simmons took charge of the high school this morning, and Miss Bunin succeeding Miss Clara Bohan, at the Jefferson school, who resigns to be married November 25, to D. Frank Ryan.

Miss Simmons is a graduate of Beloit college, with eight years' experience in teaching. She will instruct in history and English. The overflow of work at the local high school was sufficient to demand another instructor, the school having grown with at least twenty more students than it had last year.

Miss Bunin will take charge of the fourth grade, previously held by Miss Bohan. She is a graduate of the Stevens Point Normal school.

REVIVAL MEETINGS ATTRACTING CROWDS

Evangelists Conduct Inspiring Services at Auditorium—Will Continue Through Week.

Revival meetings which are being held at the auditorium building on South Main street are attracting attention and two large audiences were inspired by the addresses Sunday afternoon and evening. The meetings which will be held daily throughout the week at twelve o'clock, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. are being conducted under the auspices of the National and Wisconsin Holiness associations.

Evangelist Glascock of Cincinnati, Ohio, was the speaker Sunday afternoon and emphasized religious truths in convincing and stirring style.

Evangelist Wilson of Chicago talked in the evening from the text: "Be sure your sins will find you out."

Misses Caffrey and Pennell, singers well known in this city, assist at the meetings.

POSTMASTER GENERAL AUTHORITY OF A "BEST SELLER"

Postmaster General Burlison is the author of a "six best sellers" among the books of the coming season. Announcement was made today that it was off the press and soon could be had at thousands of postoffices and sub-postoffices throughout the country. The book, its attractive title being "24:1c-2c," is embellished with beautiful engravings and will sell for the nominal sum of 73 cents.

The demand for such a book will be recognized by those who approved of that other sterling little volume issued by the government and which contained twelve 2-cent stamps, the price of which was 25 cents. The new volume is to contain twenty-four 2-cent and an equal number of 1-cent stamps.

The department has issued instructions to postoffices throughout the country concerning the issue of the new stamp books.

GOOD CIGARS WILL BE HIGHER SHORTLY

Nothing But Clay Pipes Reduced by the Democratic Duty Schedule.

There is no more pipe of clay. Give me my pipe of clay.

For the tariff has raised the price of cigars. And these prices I can not pay.

(Apologies to Mr. Kipling.) If Kipling had waited until today to write that poem in which he made a lot of women dislike him when he declared:

For a woman is only a woman, But a good cigar is a smoke, It would have been necessary for him to replace the cigar with a pipe, to make it appeal to the average man, for the democrats treated the cigar and cigarette as luxuries. Which means that instead of reducing import duties on them, they either remained the same or were increased.

My Lady Nicotine received few favors from the new tariff law. Devotees of the weed do not stand much chance of saving any money under the new law unless they smoke it in pipe form. If he smokes a clay pipe he'll be able to save more.

The same old import tax of $1.85 per pound on filler tobacco is in effect today. American smokers paid $6,120,000 last year on this grade of tobacco. Likewise the old duty of 35 cents a pound on manufactured tobacco prevails. $17,700,000 "went up in smoke" literally last year, as the "indirect tax" on that article, and $2,985,000 more in taxes on stemmed filler.

The democrats even refused to reduce the tariff on snuff. They did, however, slightly lower the import taxes on cigar bands, especially the fancy varieties which may interest the label collectors who paste up vases, jars and ash trays in a riot of labels.

While the new law imposes a tax lower by one-half on cheap clay pipes, the regular penny clay pipe will sell for the same amount. "T. D.'s," however, and other more expensive clay pipes, will sell cheaper. For men who use "makka's" no tariff savings can be secured. It will be that we get a far better grade of papers for the same or slightly lower price. The import tariff on "papers" is reduced 16 per cent. Republicans, however, declare the importers will set the difference.

The "pipe fiend" who burns tobacco incense at the shrine of "My Lady" with costly imported briar root or meerschaums, may be able to save a quarter or half a dollar when he finally discards his old time stained favorite and buys a new pipe imported since Oct. 3. The 16 per cent tariff reduction on the fancy imported pipes will, it is believed, cause some slight reduction at the tobacco stores.

OBITUARY

S. D. Conant.

A message was received yesterday morning announcing the death of S. D. Conant, which occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Farnham, of Lake Mills, Saturday evening, November 8th.

Samuel D. Conant was born at Irasburg, Vermont, where his early life was spent and where his home was established. He came west in 1855 with his family, and located on a farm just south of the city, where he resided for a number of years.

Later he bought a home in the first ward, which was occupied until broken up by the death of his wife some fifteen years ago. Since then he has resided with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Farnham, whose husband recently closed a twenty-five years' pastorate of the First Congregational church at La Crosse.

Had Mr. Conant lived until Thanksgiving day he would have been ninety-three years old. It is said that a few people whose years are prolonged far beyond the age limit, that they never grow old. Mr. Conant belonged to this class.

He was in the thick of the fight at seventy, active and vigorous at eighty, and when the number eighty was passed, he was still able to give a good account of himself. In fact, he retained his mental faculties until the last, and only within the past few months was he afflicted with physical infirmities.

Many people live out beyond their generation, and find themselves alone in the busy throng about them. The depressing thought comes to them that they are in it, but not of it, and so they long for release.

Occasionally some hardy soul, possessed of staying qualities, retains his grasp on the active generation, as old associations fade from view, and perpetual youth follows as a reward.

This was Mr. Conant's equipment, and this his happy experience. He was a general favorite with young people. A man whose judgment was sought and respected by men in active life, and no one ever thought of him as an "old man."

In talking with him a few days ago about the Cargill Memorial Methodist church, of which he was a member, and with which he had much to do in securing the Cargill donation, at the time it was built, he expressed the same loyal interest that was evidenced half a century ago, for the old Methodist church in the early days of its history.

Mr. Conant was a large possessor of an every day religion, which so thoroughly permeated his life that it inspired the confidence, and won the love of all who knew him. To associate with him was an inspiration.

He carried with him through the long pilgrimage, the heart of a boy, and at the end of the journey it was unscathed by the passing years. Honest and steadfast, he lived an upright life, and his memory lingers as a benediction.

Remaining members of the immediate family are a son and daughter, Theodore, of St. Louis; and Mrs. Henry Farnham of Lake Mills.

Funeral services will be held at the Cargill church at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, and the remains will rest by the side of his wife at Oak Hill.

Charles Dutton.

The remains of Charles Dutton, who died in Houston, Texas, on October the first, arrived in this city yesterday. Services will be held at the grave in Oak Hill cemetery tomorrow afternoon at three-thirty, the Rev. T. D. Williams of the M. E. church officiating.

The marriage was performed at the Episcopal church of the Resurrection, which was officiated by the rectored choir. A reception and supper at the Hotel La Salle followed. WHEN A ROOM IN YOUR HOUSE GROWS DARK YOU KNOW WHY. WHEN A PART OF YOUR BODY GOES WRONG, I KNOW WHY.

The principle is the same. If a person would try to light the dark rooms by making more electricity instead of turning on the switch, you would call him crazy.

Yet that is what most people do with their bodies. They take drugs and do everything to try and make a part of their body do its duty when it is really cut off from the source of supplies.

Pressure on the nerve caused by subluxated vertebra (bone) of the spinal column will injure an organ as pushing a button of an electric switch will put out the light.

MORRIS MILLER

There's going to be some merry battling between the Federal league and the two major leagues as time goes on and already a little of the bitterness has been shown. The Federal league, if it attempts to take reserve list players from any of the major league teams, will find that it has stirred up a quite a lot of displeasure among its big league brethren. George Stovall, late with the Browns, who is now managing the Kansas City Federal league outfit, has recently made advances to Jap Barbeau with Toledo. The Federal league, says Stovall, will pay no heed to the reserve chateaus of other clubs and doesn't intend to regard the reserve clauses any team may hold. Right here there's going to be a fracas. The big leagues don't like this and they don't mind saying so. The Federal league point out that they don't plan to go after the high-priced lads, such as Cobb, Walter Johnson, et al, but for a while at least they'll stick to the $2,000 and $3,000 salary class. Of course if they tried to hire the headliners they would jolly soon go to the wall. But by picking out the good ones at the figures mentioned they hope to build up a class of teams that will attract fans and make their league a paying proposition. As they aspire to build up a major league to compete with the American and National, it is clear that they will have to spend several years and then come in the doing of it. But they seem to have the pep and were the truth known they are getting something of a rise out of the present major leagues. At the meetings of the National and American league owners to be held within the next month or two the Federal league and the situation it threatens is sure to come up for discussion. Just how much disturbed the big leagues are by this Federal peril has not been stated in many words as yet, but it is known to be appreciable.

Jim Corbett thinks that George Chip is the most promising of the present welterweights and that he will come nearer filling the shoes of old Stan Ketchel than any other

DESPERATE ELEVENS WAGE BITTER FIGHT

Brickley Kicks Harvard to Victory in Most Important Game—Wisconsin Plays Better Football.

Football followers who "doped" out big scores for the strong elevens against their weaker rivals were given a surprise Saturday when teams, thought to be crippled and hopelessly weak gave the near champs bitter combats.

The most important game Saturday was the clash of Harvard and Princeton, practically deciding the title of the east and in which one Charles Brickley sent a neat field goal between the two teams for the only score of the game. With the old Tiger war spirit against the Crimson in full force and on a gridiron covered with mud, Princeton battled the sturdy sons of Harvard to a standstill. Plastered with mud both teams resorted to punting tactics, fearing to take chances of open playing. Coach Haughton kept his stars, Brickley and Mahan, under cover most of the game. When in the battle Brickley tore a long broken run through the Tiger defense and Mahan showed his class at ripping through the line.

The desperate Yale team rallied from her string of defeats and showed Brown that the bull dog spirit was still in the sons of old Eli, pushing over two touchdowns and a field goal scoring 17, holding Brown to a whitewash. With Camp at the helm Yale promises to return to form and force her ancient rivals from Cambridge to show their best form in football.

Michigan again demonstrated the east some western class by humbling Cornell 17 to 0 by brilliant playing and tearing the easterners' defenses to shreds.

Honors of having the hardest fight in the east is due to Dartmouth against the University of Pennsylvania. Dartmouth used open football to a great success and rushed the Pennsylvania men off their feet in the last quarter. Army, Navy and Carleton had easy games and won by large scores.

Wisconsin at last played a real brand of football and trimmed Ohio State 12 to 0 and held their opponents at their mercy. The Badgers made use of the pass and fake kick formations to invade her rival's ground and their team played together in such a manner that Chicago would have their hands full.

Chicago followers were predicting a record score against the wrecked Northwestern eleven, but found their team was forced to the limit to beat the savage Evanston team. Northwestern's line proved a big surprise and the Maroons under order played hammer and tong football with little success, and fumbles were a lucky factor in her victory. Slagg refused to uncork his favorite ground gainers, saving them for Minnesota the coming Saturday. Michigan Aggies were sorely pressed in handling Little Mt. Union, but superior teamwork brought them a 13 to 7 victory.

Beloit smashed Ripon to pieces, outlassing them 47 to 0. Two men were badly injured in the contest, Captain Bruno being taken out early in the game, giving a chance to show his worth. The Janesville halfback tore off long runs and planted the ball behind the Ripon goal for one of the scores. Marquette trimmed Oshkosh Normal 22 to 0, and Carroll and Knox battled to a nothing to nothing score, both teams playing even.

Madison high school crushed La Crosse's hope of winning the state title by a tune of 26 to 3 in the most important high school game last week.

LOCALS MEET SWEDES IN RETURN CONFLICT

Game Next Saturday With Stoughton Should Be Hard Fought Contest Says Coach Curtis.

After a two weeks rest to recuperate from the defeat by Jefferson, the Janesville Highs will meet the fast Stoughton aggregation on Saturday next. The local team will be decidedly weakened by the absence of Dalton from the lineup. Dalton's head was injured in the game with Freeport some weeks ago and while the injury was apparently not severe it has given him considerable trouble, and has been thought best for him to discontinue playing for the remainder of the season at least. He will, however, be one of the aspirants for basket ball honors later.

Just what the lineup will be is not yet determined, but Coach Curtis is most anxious to make the shifting of players such that the strongest possible combination can be presented to the Swedes in an endeavor to retrieve the former defeat at their hands by a score of 42 to 0. Thus far this year Janesville has but one victory to its credit, having won from Freeport by a score of six to nothing but losing to Beloit, Stoughton, Edgerton and Jefferson. Practice was held this afternoon.

When You Sneeze.
The custom of saying "God bless you" to a person when he sneezes originated among the ancients, who, fearing danger from it, after sneezing made a short prayer to the gods, as "Jupiter, help me." The custom is mentioned by Homer, the Jewish rabbis and others. Polydore Vergil says it took its rise at the time of the plague in 558, when the infected fell dead, sneezing, though apparently in good health.

"GET CHICAGO" SAY WISCONSIN STUDENTS

Badgers May Go to Minneapolis, Saturday, to Witness Gopher-Maroon Contest.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—Their last home game out of the way and won, the Badgers today entered upon their last two weeks of gridiron work. No game is scheduled for next Saturday, and the two weeks will be devoted entirely to rehearsal for the big game with Chicago, at University of Chicago field, Nov. 22. There is a movement on foot to send the team to Minneapolis next Saturday to see the Minnesota-Chicago fray.

The game against Ohio State last Saturday was interesting principally because of the spectacular delivery of forward passes at different stages of the contest. During the last few minutes of play the visitors gave a bewildering exhibition of this difficult art, and gained a good deal of ground. Before this time their passes invariably went wide or were intercepted. The game revealed for the first time to the Wisconsin fans the presence of a future quarterback of the promise in Taylor, who went in for Bellows in the second quarter. He made a wild dash through center and was on his way for a touchdown when he slipped up. In generalship he lacks experience, but he has two years more to play and it is safe to say he will be groomed for his part with assiduous attention.

The Badger coaches will devote most of their time in the next two weeks to the backfield. If the Cardinals are able to develop a steady, consistent defense, they must be conceded a chance to win over Chicago.

Dead as a Doornail.
"As dead as a doornail" at first seems utterly senseless, but becomes lively and picturesque when we remember that knockers were once universally used. Beneath the knocker, in order to prevent disfiguring the door, a large nail or bolt was driven. An impatient caller, waiting for the door to be opened, would frequently use the knocker with great force, and the irresponsiveness of the nail gave rise to this expression.—Harper's Monthly.

SPASMODIC SYMPATHY.
An account of the relief for the Volturno survivors with an interesting comparison between the problems presented by the Volturno and Titanic disasters, and the funds raised for them, appears in the November magazine issue of The Survey. In the case of the Titanic, the world knew accurately in a day or so who had been lost or who had come ashore widowed and orphaned. Within a short time, $163,000 was contributed to the relief fund. In the case of the Volturno, the nine different rescuing steamers took the survivors, nearly all immigrants, to various ports. So scattered were they and so difficult of identification were many of their names that it was days before accurate knowledge could be had as to who or how many were left helpless in the world. An appeal for money was made, and at the end of two weeks only $5,239.52 had been contributed.

Scarcely a survivor of the Volturno could speak English. The passengers were Russian Jews, Poles, Hungarians, Croats, Macedonians, Frenchmen, Germans, Dutchmen and others. The task of caring for them as they landed—doing the utmost to identify them and to reunite families, to clothe, feed and shelter them until they could be sent on to their destinations, and seeing that when they left they had the necessities of life—was taken in hand by the Red Cross Emergency Relief Committee, a standing committee of the New York Charity Organization society and affiliated with the American Red Cross.

The task of putting back on their feet those families, portions of families who lost the savings with which they had expected to make a start in the New World is a vital part of the relief plans. Obviously it is handicapped by lack of funds. As late as October 23 it was estimated that at least $20,000 more would be needed.

The loss of the Titanic aroused a world-wide sympathy, and generous hearts responded freely. The case of the Volturno was different because a large majority of the passengers were saved and landed at a dozen different ports. This made it difficult to trace them, and our own country soon lost track of many of them.

The time to raise money for the sufferers of any disaster is when it occurs, and this is especially true of the American people, whose sympathies are easily aroused, and whose time is so thoroughly occupied that public calamities are soon forgotten. The Red Cross society is always worthy of support, and money distributed through this channel is never wasted.

THE HONOR SYSTEM.
The schools of the land have come to recognize the fact that the best discipline results from a code of honor, and so many school rooms are self-governed. Confidence inspires confidence, and a trust of this kind is seldom betrayed.

This principle is now being applied to prisons and reformatories, with flattering results. It had its inception in Oregon. Not many years ago, and is now adopted by half a dozen western states. The large majority of men sentenced for crime, are not criminals at heart, and they respond very readily to the touch of humanity. Here is a little experience that came to the Joliet state prison, as related in a late issue of the "Survey."

In Illinois one day in September forty-five prisoners, including murderers, forgers, hold-up men, thieves and other varieties of offenders, went out from Joliet venturing. By day they work "like human beings" under a superintendent, at night they live practically unguarded in a camp over which flies a banner with the significant name "Camp Hope." "Make good, fellows," called the 1,400 who remained behind; "for God's sake make good and help us all to get out into the sunshine again."

The Illinois test will be watched by other states, and particularly, no doubt, by Wisconsin, where the plan is soon to be tried, and in Florida, where it is coming to general attention.

"Well I just set up that work on Monday," exclaimed one of the men, as the oven air and fresh confidence kindled his enthusiasm and vitality.

Incidents have been reported which are significant as showing the temper of this honor squad. A newspaper photographer, hurrying into Dixon to mail a batch of photographs, left his coat at Camp Hope. He had intended to return, but did not. His coat lay in an exposed place and a burglar, who had been sent up for fifteen years, took it to Captain Keegan and handed it to him remarking: "Some fellows left their perfectly good coats here, captain, and I think we had better take care of it. There's so many outsiders coming in."

The experience of Wisconsin, in dealing with minor offenders, under the new law, is equally gratifying.

TOO THEORETICAL.
No one anticipated that the recent tariff measure passed by the democratic congress would be perfect in every detail and consequently the public is not surprised that even the democratic attorney general has found it necessary to give his opinion on one important clause of the bill. The following dispatch from Washington tells the whole story and comment is unnecessary:

Attorney General McReynolds has decided that the sub-section of the tariff law authorizing a discount of 5 per cent on all goods imported in American vessels is nullified by its proviso that "nothing in this subsection shall be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of any treaty concluded between the United States and any foreign nation."

Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department, made public the attorney general's opinion today, and announced that in accordance with it collectors of customs would be directed to continue to disregard the subsection, as they were instructed to do on Oct. 8.

Entries held up pending the decision now will be liquidated, leaving importers who desire to insist upon getting the 5 per cent discount to protest with the right of finally carrying the question to the court of customs appeals.

This ends, for the present at least, the long drawn out discussion over the proposed differential duty provision, the subject of much debate in congress while the tariff bill was under consideration. The attorney general gave his opinion to Secretary McAdoo ten days ago, but it was withheld until today to allow consideration by the treasury officials.

Mr. McReynolds held "that the 5 per cent discount to American vessels only, which was the primary object of the subsection in question, cannot be given without impairing the stipulations of existing treaties between the United States and various other powers, and that consequently the subsection, by the expressed terms of the provisions, is inoperative."

Twenty-three nations have treaties with the United States under which they claimed their ships had a right to the differential in commercial American ships. These included Great Britain, Germany, France, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Denmark, Greece, the Netherlands, Spain, Norway and Sweden.

Several foreign governments, including those of Germany, France and Spain, made strong protests against the proposed discrimination, and there were some indirect threats of a trade war if the preference duty was enforced.

Efforts were made by some of the administration leaders immediately after foreign protests were received to have congress repeal the provision. Representative Underwood, chairman of the house ways and means committee and the original champion of the clause, however, expressed himself as opposed to such action, and the president did not urge it.

Allowance of the discount to ships of those nations claiming equal rights with American bottoms would have resulted in an estimated loss of $10,000,000 annually in custom duties. This would have created a deficit in the treasury of a surplus in the treasury, according to estimates of the tariff framers.

Rehabilitation of the American merchant marine was the expressed purpose of those who had the provision inserted. They argued it would operate as an incentive to the construction of ships in the United States, since shippers of goods in American bottoms would get the 5 per cent discount, and the American shipowners would be assured of an increase of business.

Importers who are dissatisfied with the opinion of the attorney general may protest to the collector of customs at the port of entry, who will lay their objections before the board of general appraisers. In case the board's decision is unsatisfactory to the appellant the case may be carried to the court of customs appeals for final decision.

"It is easy to cut out the meat when you pass a restaurant and smell the savory odor of a broiling porterhouse steak take an onion out of your pocket and eat it (the onion, not the pocket). That will take away the desire for meat or for anything else, and you can go to a dozen other restaurants with perfect impunity, for you can then smell nothing."
We bought a half dozen nice Spanish onions and went and stood in front of a restaurant. A man on the inside received a double porterhouse steak and ate an onion.
The next man got ham and eggs and ate another onion. A third man got an order of young turkey and oyster dressing and ate another onion. Then we went and stood in front of another restaurant. The test had grown too strong and so we had the onions.

"THE SHADOW OF EVIL"
The Story in Brief—Mary escapes from her evil life with Spanu and takes passage on board a steamer. There she meets Mrs. Manfred, on the way to join her husband, and Mr. Werner, a wealthy man, who takes an interest in her. There is a terrific storm at sea and Werner cannot swim. As the vessel goes down Mary, who is thoroughly at home in water, succeeds in pulling Werner on a floating spar and saves his life. They drift to a barren island where they remain until picked up by a passing steamer. While on the island, Mary picks from the wreckage washed ashore, a hand bag which contains Mrs. Manfred's papers. She resolves to take the name of the poor woman and begin life anew. Mary marries Werner and they have a child. They are very happy. Spanu sinks to the dregs and, leaving his native haunts, lands in the city where Mary lives with her husband. He attempts to rob the Werner mansion at night and comes face to face with Mary. Their conversation is overheard by Werner who returns home suddenly. Spanu proceeds to rob the house but Mary tries to prevent him. Werner enters and a struggle ensues. Spanu escapes and is pursued by the police. As he rushes across the railroad track, a passing train runs him down before the horrified gaze of Werner who returns to his wife just in time to see her kiss the baby good-by preparatory to leaving forever. He forgives the past and happiness is again restored.

The closing scene is perhaps the most artistic and beautiful that has ever been staged in motion pictures, while the shipwreck with its hundreds of struggling passengers, is exceptionally realistic.

EXCITING DERBY RACE FILM
What is undoubtedly the most remarkable topical film ever brought to this country reached New York a few days ago from the Gaumont Company, Ltd., of London. This film covered the Derby Race at Epsom Downs, in which Emily Davison, a militant suffragette, threw King George's horse and sustained fatal injuries.

On the occasion of this year's Derby the Gaumont Company had fifteen cameramen stationed on the course, two being located at the famous Tattenham Corner. This is the most interesting spot in the whole Derby course, and here it was that Miss Davison chose to sacrifice her life in order to call attention to the cause she advocated.

As the horses rounded Tattenham Corner, two Gaumont men were busily grinding out film. In their pictures the first batch of horses goes thundering by, suddenly a woman in dark clothes springs from the rail and as the last three horses appear, quickly grabs the bridle of the King's entry, throwing the horse a complete somersault, precipitating the jockey headlong through the air, falling herself under the hoofs of the horse which follow. Every incident of the unfortunate affair is accurately recorded in the most remarkable series of motion pictures ever taken of a current event. Every London illustrated paper used clips from the Gaumont films in distributing the episode. The Gaumont Derby film has been exhibited at practically every first-class motion picture theatre along Broadway, New York.

Early Christmas Shopping:

For the past several years we've urged upon the Christmas shoppers of Southern Wisconsin the advisability of early Christmas shopping. Each year there has been a noticeable decrease in late shopping. But still the stores continue to be overruled at the 11th hour. We feel now that we can thus early ask you to so plan your Christmas purchases that they will be completed before the last day. To facilitate this we have prepared more extensive than ever before. Great quantities of practical as well as ornamental Christmas gift merchandise are already being unpacked and will be shown in a few days so that your shopping for the holidays may be more expeditious and satisfactory. We would remind you also that this year more than ever, "Uncle Sam" will be deluged with packages by parcel post and express, so that early Christmas shopping is most advisable.

Inspiration.
"At last," cried the musician, "I have fame within my grasp." "How so?" asked his wife, who had heard the same thing before. "You know Mendelssohn's 'Wedding March,' and the marvelous repete it brought him?" said the musician. "Yes, but what of it?" "Well, I'm going to write a divorce march."—Life.

EXPECT NO FIGHT

ON EQUALIZATION
AT BOARD MEETING

Committee's Report Arrived at Without Friction—Various Other Matters of Importance to Receive Attention.

There will be no fight on the matter of equalization of the county assessment for the purpose of taxation, at the meeting of the county board which will be called tomorrow afternoon at the county clerk's office. According to Supervisor on Assessments P. A. Taylor the report of the committee on equalization was arrived at last week without friction of any sort and no untoward discussion is foreseen at the session of the supervisors. Beloit's equalization figure is slightly lower than last year, according to Mr. Taylor, which is accounted for by the fact that manufacturers' stock is much lower throughout the entire state.

At the meeting of the board last November there was a vigorous protest on the part of the Beloit delegation against the Beloit equalization figure as submitted by Mr. Taylor, which resulted in a prolonged session of the board.

Among the other matters which will be considered by the board at this session is the appropriation of a fund for a county agricultural demonstration as provided for in a recent enactment of the legislature. The Janesville commercial club, which has been interesting itself in the proposition, will campaign for securing such an official for Rock county, and through their committee will ask for a hearing before the supervisors. F. H. Jackson, a member of the committee, stated today that it was the intention to have some competent person from out of the city present to give a brief talk summing up the probable benefits of such a plan.

Another proposition which will occupy the attention of the board will be an appropriation for the purpose of aiding helpless and dependent children. The new law provides that destitute children may be helped by the county upon the order of a juvenile court to the sum of not more than twelve dollars a month. The sum may be increased in case of sickness or other unforeseen circumstances. It is optional with the county board whether a sum of money shall be set aside for the county treasury for such emergencies. It is probable that the poor masters and the district attorney will be heard on this matter.

The reports of the various committees, including the annual appropriations of the county treasury relative to road and bridge work, and other routine business will come before the board. A superintendent of poor for the northern half of the county to succeed Asa Anderson will be elected. Mr. Anderson is a candidate to succeed himself and will probably have no opposition. The election of a commissioner of highways will not be held until the January meeting.

The supervisors will be entertained at the coming session. On Wednesday they will be the guests of Sheriff and Mrs. C. S. Whipple for dinner at the county jail and on Thursday they will have their dinner at the county farm, guests of Superintendent and Mrs. D. M. Barless.

NO EVENING SESSION OF MUNICIPAL COURT

Drunks Were in Too Advanced a State of Intoxication to be Brought into Court.

Because of the advanced state of intoxication of the drunks in police court last night, the session of the municipal court was held on Saturday as had been proposed. "They were dead to the world," said Judge Maxfield, discussing the case of the drunks, "and it was out of the question to bring them into court. I shall continue to ascertain every Saturday night whether there are any in shape for court, and when there are such a session will be held."

Chief Ranger is willing to co-operate with me in this purpose. Ninety days of labor are at the command of Rock county agriculture. The sentences passed this morning, upon Ben Dixon, W. Mehren and W. Bauer, the three who were indicted for the distinction of being arraigned in the night court, repeated a few days at hard labor, Mehren to sixty days, and Bauer to thirty.

Mehren and Bauer were unable to accept the alternative sentence of $25 and costs. Bauer was taken into custody Friday night after attempting to pick a fight at the Kelly cafe. He is also reported to have stolen a pair of shoes at the store of McGuffin and Caldwell several days ago but he returned the property.

ATTORNEY GENERAL
APPROVES OF BONDS

Finds That Issue of Milwaukee Street Bridge Bonds Were Properly Authorized.

Since the state purchased Milwaukee street bridge bonds in the sum of $20,000 as an investment for the teachers' pension funds, the attorney general was called upon to examine into the validity of the issue. He signifies his approval of the bonds in a letter to the city clerk which reads in part as follows:

"I have examined the certified copy of the proceedings of the common council of the city of Janesville in connection with the issue of the Milwaukee street bridge bonds of the par value of $3,000, and find that the issue of such bonds to have been properly authorized."

"In publication of the ordinance both before its passage and afterward, in section 5, the year 1921 was omitted as one of the years in which the bonds are to mature. The omission, however, does show a total issue of bonds of the par value of $33,000, with four bonds of the par value of $500 each maturing each year beginning with 1915, and ending with 1921, with the exception of the one mentioned. It also shows the levying of a tax for the payment of four bonds in 1921. No one could possibly be misled by the omission of the year 1921 in section 5. Clearly such an omission is a clerical error."

The attorney general cites several decisions in support of his opinion.

LEADERS INSISTING
PROGRESSIVE LEADER
'MUST HEAD TICKET

Local Democratic Politicians Much Interested in Nominees for Next Year

Local democratic politicians are much interested in the rumor that Judge Karel of Milwaukee, much as he may wish to, will not be permitted to again become an active candidate for the democratic nomination for governor.

The story sounds reasonable. The progressive democrats have got the reactionary democrats in this state by the throat, and the reactionaries will not get control of the democratic party next year as they did last year.

President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, who represent the progressive democracy in a national sense, will not endorse or encourage the election of a state democratic ticket that stands on a reactionary platform such as the state democracy endorsed a year ago or that puts forth any such candidates as "Ikey" Karel. All this is a distinct victory for the progressive element of the democratic party in this state as represented by Joseph E. Davies and his co-workers. The nomination possibilities most favorably considered at this time are State Senator Paul S. Husting for United States senator, and Bert Williams of Ashtabud for governor.

PROCURED NO DRINK FOR JOHN DOHERTY.

Arnold Tift, Arraigned on Charge of Furnishing Liquor to Prisoner, Pleads Innocence.

Arnold Tift, arraigned before Judge Maxfield this afternoon on the charge of furnishing intoxicating liquor to John E. Doherty, a prisoner sentenced under the labor commitment law, plead "not guilty" to the charge, and on motion of District Attorney Durand the case was continued a week in order to make further investigation. Tift asserted that Doherty this morning asserted in his presence and that of the sheriff that the liquor which he had become intoxicated was furnished by Ben Dixon, who this morning was sentenced to six months imprisonment, and by one other man. The penalty for the offense is from thirty days to six months at hard labor.

Three children were born to them, Anna and William Mahon, both deceased, and Mrs. C. L. Kenner of Chicago. He was married a second time to Miss Minnie Short of this city. Rather Gave Himself Away. "I have met this man," said a lawyer, with extreme severity, "in a great many places where I would be ashamed to be seen myself," and then he paused and looked with astonishment at the smiling court and jury.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS
SCENE OF RESEARCH
PARTY'S OPERATIONS

Prof. David Tennent Writes From Thursday Island Regarding Important Scientific Expedition.

Mrs. Mary D. Tennent of Milwaukee avenue has received a letter from her son, Prof. David H. Tennent of Bryn Mawr college, who is a member of the expedition to the south seas to spend a year in experimental research for purpose of discovering the vital processes which underlie the mystery and origin of life, from Thursday Island in the Torres Straits.

The expedition sailed from San Francisco last July and was composed of Alfred C. Mayer of the Carnegie Institute at Washington, Prof. David H. Tennent, Dr. E. Newton Harvey, instructor of physiology at Princeton, Prof. E. L. Clark of Harvard University, Prof. Frank M. Poole of Cambridge University, England, and John Mills of the Carnegie Institute. They had planned to locate their main laboratory on Thursday Island, but according to Prof. Tennent's letter, it has been decided to locate this laboratory on Murray Island, on the outer edge of the Barrier Reef.

Prof. Tennent has many friends in Janesville who will be most interested in reading the contents of the letter sent his mother which is reproduced below:

Thursday Island, Queensland, Australia, Sept. 14, 1912.
"We reached Thursday Island two days ago and after a brief inspection of the region here we decided to go to Murray Island, about one hundred and twenty miles from here, situated on the outer edge of the Barrier Reef."

"The location will be just what we want for our work, but is outside of any communication, either by mail or telegraph, with the outside world. The voyage out was very pleasant. We stopped in the Society Islands, the Cook Islands, Wellington, New Zealand and Sydney, Brisbane, Townsville and Cairnes, Australia. At Sydney we had about a week in port and went back into the mountains. At Cairnes we had two days, which we spent in the country about thirty miles from the city. "Thursday Island is a cosmopolitan sort of a place, nearly every nationality being represented. We will return here about November first and will start the return journey soon after that. On Murray Island there is only one white man, Mr. Bruce, a government teacher who has been in the islands for about forty years. The natives are Papuans. "Throughout the expedition we have met very cordial treatment. The governors and other public officials have done everything in their power to make our work a success."

Drink Plenty of Water. Perhaps no means of lessening fatigue is of more importance than a proper supply of drinking water. The products of waste, carbon dioxide and lactic acid, are taken up by the fluids of the body and carried to the lungs and kidneys for elimination. The accumulation of waste products is often due to insufficient use of drinking water. It has been noticed in the army that the man who falls from heat stroke is the one whose canteen is empty.

MADRID

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

MADRID, the capitol of Spain and the barred windows of the Madrid bull fighting industries of the world, is more facile. It varies from 123 in the shade, to freezing, and it can accomplish both in the same day. The prevailing Madrid costume in summer is a thin suit, a fan, a heavy woolen blanket and a straw hat. Madrid is not as old as most European cities. Before the 16th century it was only a way station, and wasn't even in a Class D bull fighting league. In 1560 it was more capital of Spain, however, and grew rapidly. It now contains 600,000 people, several of whom do not smoke cigars.

Madrid has one of the largest palaces in the world, and a handsome new railway station. It has more fine paintings than New York and more churches than Chicago, but has to get along without roof gardens or Chinese restaurants. It has a university with 5,000 students, but it is a tame affair, not having broken a collar bone or burned a building since the seventeenth century. Madrid has 72 public squares, all completely filled at all times with gentlemen of leisure, including a large number of statues of deceased kings. Madrid has one fine street, two miles long, and a number of street cars, each equipped with fenders in the rear, to protect pedestrians.

Madrid does most of the manufacturing for Spain and is a growing town, about the size of Cleveland, Ohio. In general liveliness it resembles the latter city after 1 a. m. The principal amusements in Madrid are sleeping in the afternoon, promenading in the evening and betting on which precedent the King of Spain will break next. It resembles an American city in only one thing—the street cleaning department seems to require about the same amount of rest.

PRESS COMMENT.

Accompaniment to Discords. Milwaukee now has a municipal orchestra. It will accompany the chorus of municipal howls whenever taxes go up.—Sheboygan Journal.

Remedy Within Party. Democratic papers are attacking the state tax and claim it should mean the election of a democratic administration next year. The News has no excuses to offer for the present and recent state administrations though they were and are called "republican." This state has gone wild over occasions and expenditures, aiming to interfere in every private business and enterprise. Land has been wastefully bought, and much money used in useless investigations. We need a change in methods and men, but we believe that a good republican administration will do more for the people than would a change to the uncertain and unreliable democracy. Let us nominate and elect safe and sane republican leaders, on a platform of economy and common sense, and we will cut down the taxes, and cut out a large part of the causes for the general dissatisfaction.—Rhinelander News.

Today's Edgerton News

GAME TO WAUKESHA BY A SINGLE SCORE

Edgerton Eleven Plays Fine Game
Against Contenders for State Title.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Nov. 10.—An evenly matched game of football was played last Saturday against Waukesha on Edgerton's home field, the game ending with a score of 7 to 0 in Waukesha's favor. The touchdown was made in the first three minutes of play when Edgerton was penalized fifteen yards for holding. The other quarters were scoreless, the ball changing hands in the center of the field, each side holding for downs, causing the other side to punt. Regarding the game itself, it was about the prettiest exhibition of football the local even has shown this season and against as strong a team as Edgerton has clashed with, with the exception of Beloit. Waukesha has won every game except South Division, Milwaukee high, and it looks like a good showing for the championship of the state.

The field was muddy in places and covered with snow, and the weather was really too cold to play football. Notwithstanding the weather, however, a goodly crowd of Edgerton enthusiasts were present to witness the game. Jefferson will probably be next, playing here on the coming Saturday, and Edgerton should win that game if they play as good as they did with Waukesha.

Dinner Stories

The village schoolmaster had pulled out his twenty-bladed knife, and was explaining to his class how all the implements were useless but for the modest bone handle.

"Which part of the knife, therefore, do I make the most use of?" he asked.

"A boy at the foot of the class promptly responded: 'Please, sir, the corkscREW.'"

The late Lord Young was responsible for enlightening many a dull case. One of the most amusing remarks was the reply to a counsel who urged on behalf of a plaintiff of somewhat bituluous appearance. "My client, my lord, is a most able man, and holds a very responsible position. He is manager of some waterworks."

"Aster a long look, Lord Young answered:

"Yes, he looks like a man who could be trusted with any amount of water."

A man may be rough looking and yet have a touch of sentiment about him.

A ragged, ill-kept-looking man appeared at the door of a woman's home and in a pleading tone asked:

"Have you a piece of cake lady, to give a poor man who hasn't had a bite for two days?"

"Cake?" echoed the woman in surprise. "Isn't bread good enough for you?"

"Ordinarily, yes, ma'am. But this is my birthday," explained the tramp.

CONVENE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION IN LOUISIANA

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 10.—In order to make possible the borrowing of $11,000,000 the Louisiana constitutional convention convened here this morning. The proposed amendment to the constitution, which will permit the state to issue short time notes which are to be placed at the best interest rate available so that the maturing issue of state bonds can be taken care of January 1, is expected to meet with little opposition in the convention. The present constitution does not permit of the issuing of anything less than a fifty-year bond issue. It is also specified that no interest in excess of four per cent is to be paid. Under these restrictions it was found impossible to secure funds, owing to the high prevailing rates.

Right Sort of Schoolmarm.

"Too much sympathy is misplaced," says the Atchison Globe. "An Atchison man lately expressed concern because a young lady school teacher had as many as forty little pupils in her room to discipline and worry over. 'Why, I wouldn't part with a single one,' was her indignant answer, and her eyes were actually tearful."

Good Reason for It.

A gentleman who was raising bees and was the owner of several hives was telling some children they must not bother them at all. One little girl said, "Brother picked up one this morning, but he let right go again."

Had His Number.

The newly accepted young man was "making up" to his sweetheart's impish small brother. Willie, evincing a desire to inspect his watch chain, the visitor lifted Willie to his lap. In a pause of general conversation Willie piped, shrilly: "Am I as heavy as sister Mabel?"

FRENCH MAKE PLANS TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF CANAL OPENING

I repeat that we are still in a period of deliberation, and it is impossible for me to be more precise in regard to the hypotheses I have just examined.

But it will be understood without difficulty that France considers it her duty to give for merchant marine in the Pacific a less negligible role than that which it has played in the past. As an example and to show how much it is necessary for French shipping to make an effort on the Pacific coasts, I should like to indicate two figures bearing on our commercial relations with Chile: During 1911 while 4,344 English steamers entered Chilean ports, and 4,329 left them, and German figures for the same period show 1,917 entries and 1,908 departures, our own fleet was only represented by the entry of 139 vessels, and leaving of 135. These figures are all the more humiliating in view of the fact that French commerce with Chile for the same year, 1911, shows an importation of 10 million francs by Chile from this country. What is the meaning of this if not that we are continually providing foreign countries with our national freight.

I could multiply observations of this kind concerning Ecuador and Colombia. But I have said enough to show that the French government should make it a duty to profit by the opening of the Panama canal in order to secure the entry of our flag in the South American ports where it is seen now only too rarely.

"I persist in thinking that this enterprise on our part can only be well regarded by American commerce, for the more frequent appearance of our flag and our commercial fleet in Pacific waters will not be a danger, but will on the contrary be a help, in the safeguarding of North American interests."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

CAN YOU BAME HER?

AND JUST think, she only came yesterday, and she wants to go out this afternoon. From the speaker's indignant tone and from the manner in which this charge was received by the group of housewives to whom it was made, you would have thought she was telling of some perfectly outrageous happening.

As a matter of fact, she was simply informing the other women that the maid who came to work for her on Wednesday expected to go out on Thursday, that being her regular day off.

"They want the earth, these girls!" she continued, after her announcement has received its due tribute of amazed and indignant comment. "Just think! She had been taking a month's rest and yet she wanted to work one day and have the next off! I didn't let her have it, but she was quite right about it. I declare, I don't know what we are coming to!"

Now do you think this girl had justice on her side or not?

Suppose a girl went to work on Friday in a shop or office or factory, where Saturday afternoon off was the rule. Would her employers expect her to work that particular Saturday afternoon, because she had just come to work? Of course they wouldn't.

We often wonder why girls prefer starvation wages in a shop, office or factory, to a comfortable wage as houseworker. Is not this one of the reasons? That is, in the business world, they receive businesslike treatment, while in the home they are at the mercy of an unbusinesslike and often unreasonable mistress.

I have just received a letter on this same general subject. Of course I do not think there are many mistresses who are so absolutely unfeeling as to act as this woman did, but I think her conduct was more or less typical of the unreasonableness of a large class of mistresses.

Besides, we read about the mistress side of the case so much more often than I am always ready to print the maid's.

"I am in a strange country, trying to make my honest living which the world owes everyone that seeks it," writes my letter friend. "I am a milliner by trade, but find it impossible to make a living on it, having no home. So I am doing housework, and have been in one place between three and four years. Now I have a gentleman friend that I keep steady company with, and the lady won't allow me to entertain him in our only parlor, the kitchen, so that means I have to meet him on the street corners, which I don't think looks very well. I have seen so much about young girls walking the streets, but what are you going to do in a case like this? If I wanted to lead a single life I certainly would go in the convent, as it is the only place where I could have a good honest girl, he don't approve of having to meet me on the street corner, or walking the streets, and we can't afford to take in the theatre a couple of nights a week for the simple reason of keeping off the streets. Now I am thinking of making a change. The only fault I have with my position is I can't entertain him one or two nights a week in our only parlor, the kitchen. Do you blame me? I feel that I am good enough to have my friend one or two nights a week in our only parlor, the kitchen. I don't blame girls for working for starvation wages, rather than do housework, in the land of the free and the home of the brave."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To remove water spots, the whole garment should be sponged lightly, and the bad places steamed out.

Use hot milk instead of cold when mashing potatoes and it will go farther.

Hang woollens out on the line dripping wet and they will not shrink.

To stop the door hinges from creaking rub them with a lead pencil.

THE TABLE.

Cream Pie—Two eggs, one cup of sugar, two-thirds cup of thin cream, one and two-thirds cups of flour, two and one-half teaspoonsful of baking-powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of mace, one-quarter teaspoonful of ginger.

Put the unbeaten eggs in a bowl, add the sugar and cream, and beat vigorously. Mix and sift the remaining ingredients, then add to the first mixture. Bake thirty minutes in a shallow cake pan.

Sweet Potatoes Au Gratin—Cut five medium-sized cold boiled sweet potatoes in one-third inch slices. Put a layer in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt, pepper, and three tablespoonsful of brown sugar, dot over with one tablespoonful of butter.

Repeat, cover with buttered cracker crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Lemon Sauce—Three-fourths cups of sugar, one-fourth cup of water, two tablespoonsful of butter, one tablespoonful of lemon juice.

Make a syrup by boiling the sugar and water eight minutes; remove from the fire; add the butter and lemon juice.

Oysters With Bacon—Clean the oysters, and wrap a thin slice of bacon around each, and fasten with small wooden skewers. Put in a broiler, place the broiler over a dripping pan and bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp and brown, turning the broiler once during the cooking. Drain on brown paper.

Mint Sauce—One-fourth cup of finely chopped mint leaves, one half cup of vinegar, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar.

Add the sugar to the vinegar; when dissolved, pour over the mint and let stand for thirty minutes at the back of the range to infuse. If the vinegar is too strong dilute with water.

Pound Cake—One pound of butter, one pound of sugar, yolks of ten eggs, whites of ten eggs, one pound of flour, one-half teaspoonful of mace, two tablespoonsful of brandy.

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, and continue beating; then add the yolks of the eggs, beaten until thick and lemon colored, whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry, flour, mace and brandy. Beat vigorously for five minutes. Bake in a deep pan one and one-fourth hours in a slow oven; or it may be used for fancy ornamented cakes, bake thirty to thirty-five minutes in a dripping pan.

WAYS OF SERVING APPLES.

Apples are one of our common and usually cheap fruits. There are so many ways of using them as desserts, salads, soups and fresh, in its natural state. An old-fashioned pudding which is well liked by nearly everybody is Baked applesauce is delicious. Cut the apples in eighths and put them into a covered bean pot to stew. Let cook for hours, well covered; add sugar and cook until well browned.

For a filling for a layer cake there is nothing more delicious than a grated apple added to an egg white and sugar beaten until stiff. Flavor with three drops of almond extract.

Stuffed baked apples are also delicious. Core good sized apples and fill the centers with raisins, sugar, bits of butter and a dash of cinnamon. Bake and baste with water during the baking.

Pretty red apples hollowed out and then used as cups for salad are most attractive. A mixture of nuts, chopped apple and celery used for filling, with any kind of salad dressing desired, may be used.

Sour apples fried with onions are good; a bit of butter add, and be sure to have the fat hot when the apples and onions are put in, or they will not brown.

For Parisian apples, peel the apples and then cut them with a potato half cutter into small balls. Put to cook in a rich sirup flavored with lemon juice. When tender, cool and serve in sherbet glasses with the juice poured over them and a spoonful of sweetened whipped cream for a garnish.

Apples baked with rice make a most satisfying dessert, and is especially nice for the children's dessert, served with cream.

MORGAN'S DAUGHTER FOOLS INSPECTORS

Miss Anne Morgan and her "aigrette."

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. P. Morgan, had her little joke on the customs officers on arrival at New York from Europe a few days ago. The new law absolutely prohibiting the importation into this country of aigrettes had just gone into effect. Evidently Miss Morgan was wearing an aigrette. A customs officer told her that he was sorry he'd have to confiscate that aigrette she was wearing on her hat. Then Miss Morgan took the official off his feet by informing him that the aigrette was only an imitation.

Miss Morgan has been dodging the camera men for years, but she was so pleased at having fooled the customs man that she posed for the accompanying picture.

Cruel Method of Tattooing.

The natives of New Zealand have always attached great importance to the art of the tattooer, which they call moko. Instead of needles the New Zealander uses the bones of fish and birds and the hard thorns of plants. We have it on the authority of travelers that the Polynesian tattooers, who employ the incision mode, had often to hold their patients down by force until the cruel operation was finished.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A short time ago I received an invitation to a rather formal affair to be given soon. It was written in the third person on the regular invitation cards. A card bearing the name of my escort for the evening was sent with it. Now, owing to a recent death, I cannot accept. Will you please tell me how to send my regrets.

CONSTANT READER.

Use the formal form in declining the invitation, such as "Miss B. regrets that because of a recent bereavement in her family it is impossible to accept the kind invitation of Mrs. S. for the evening of," etc. An immediate reply will be necessary so that your hostess may supply your place.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls of fourteen and seventeen.

(1)—Do you think a girl of seventeen could be in love or is it only a fancy of hers?

(2)—Do you think it is right for a girl of seventeen to marry, if she dearly loves the fellow and he is nearly to be a good husband?

(3)—Should a girl of fourteen go with boys of her own age?

(4)—Is it nice to give a boy friend (whom she knows well) a Christmas present?

(5)—Is a girl of seventeen too young to have parties at her home?

(6)—Do you think it right for girls of fourteen and seventeen to go to public dances?

(7)—Is it proper for a girl to ride horseback astride or sideways?

INQUISITIVENESS AND CURIOSITY.

(1)—She might be very sincerely in love, but it is hard to tell if it is a lasting love. I would advise her to wait at least a year before deciding for a lifetime.

(2)—Apply the test of waiting a year. As a rule, a girl of seventeen is not physically or temperamentally ready to become a wife.

(3)—Why not? As friends, of course.

(4)—No.

(5)—I do not believe in young girls of any age going to public dances.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Now that winter is sending out his advance agents in the form of biting winds and chilling blasts, our thoughts naturally turn to warmer clothing.

For one who has an unlimited or generous income this is no perplexing question; merely a deciding as to what shall be purchased, what colors blend best; what is most becoming and comfortable. And of course, what is the latest.

For the ones who are forced to stay inside a slender income the question of warmer clothing often brings one up with rather a sudden jerk; probably we'd just not started to save for that really good picture you've been promising yourself for the last few years (as a reward for being an optimist, when the weather decides on a change of program, and away goes the cherished picture; the money must be used to buy a coat for little Sammie or a heavier dress for Susie).

Well, you're a good loser, and the fact that you have a little child to buy for is a great deal to be thankful for.

"The fact that you have a little child to buy for, can Heaven itself hunt a more precious gift for us? Turn to the little bed, look at the little faces: happy, care-free innocent, and the little hands childishly upturned, half closed; the little hands that hold your very heart. The picture can wait, we did not want it until spring, anyhow."

If Susie wants a set of furs, (what Susie is there who does not?) why not make them? It will not cost much. The styles of today are elastic and kind to the mother with many children to send out looking looking presentable.

For a set of furs that are really not fur at all, but are very warm and decidedly chic looking for small girls, get one yard of heavy, double-faced elidown; it comes in different colors, the red is most serviceable, but the white is very dainty.

It is 42 inches wide and from a yard may be made a neck-piece and large muff. The cost of the material is $1.25 and it takes ten yards of ribbon to trim the both pieces, as the "Most people consume as much energy in getting rid of worthless food as they do in a hard day's labor." —McCann.

It is a very easy matter to provide all sorts of dessert with fresh fruit in the summer, when fruit is at its best and usually plentiful; but it is the wise housekeeper who stores away for winter some of this fruit to use when fresh fruits are too expensive for every day. Many appealing desserts may be made from canned or evaporated fruits. There is no fruit better than apples. When plentiful, for all kinds of simple desserts.

HOLTON of THE NAVY

A Story of the Peering of Cuba
By LAWRENCE PERRY
Author of "Dan Morrell," "Prince of Chautauque," etc.

"Sonora" has been selected to press the button. I have brought you here to stop her. To save the city, to save the Americans, to save herself, for when that button is pressed she dies here." Pierre sank on his knees. "Oh, Mr. Holton, save her! She loves you. You love her! Save her. You can, and you alone can."

Holton struck the man on the shoulder and his voice was stern.

"I will save her," he paused. "So help me, Pierre, I will!"

The candle was blown out and the two waited in the darkness.

"But why," whispered Holton, "has Miss La Tossa volunteered for this work?"

"Because," was the reply, "the person who presses that button will never leave this place. It is intended that it shall be destroyed so that no trace of the mystery will ever be found."

Holton's heart grew sick. Undoubtedly the girl, in her blind, patriotic fury, had come forward as a martyr to give her life for the country she loved.

At the moment there was the sound of a lock turning and then the door creaked. Holton and Pierre were lying behind some wine-casks. The next instant they knew the girl was in the apartment with them.

They heard a match strike. Evidently she had lighted a lantern, for a soft yellow glow filled the place. And now Holton, peering through a crack between two casks, saw her.

She still wore her khaki hunting-suit. Her face was pale as death and her eyes blazed with a supernatural light. Slowly she looked about the room, and then, in the middle of the floor, she fell upon her knees. She was praying.

Holton arose silently and stole to a position directly in front of the switch key. When she returned she found him with arms folded, standing as immobile as a statue.

"You!" Her voice was deep, but expressionless.

"It is I, Miss La Tossa," responded Holton.

"Why—why have you come here?" "I have come to save you from yourself. You are in the grip of a great misunderstanding."

Before Holton's steady, compassionate gaze, the girl's eyes fell. It was as though some message from the American heart had reached her. At any rate, her voice became more gentle.

"You must leave me, Lieutenant Holton," she resumed. "I—I—"

She paused, realizing what it would mean to have Holton leave her to perform her deadly task of shattering the city and its American occupants. This thought caused her to reel.

Then, as though with the flashing swiftness of lightning, she sprang toward the officer and threw one arm around his neck, the other reaching over and touching the electric button. "Now, Mr. Holton," she cried, "if you move I shall press—"

Before she could complete her sentence Holton raised his shoulder ever so slightly and her finger was thus removed at least an inch out of reach of the little knob. She tried to spring away from him, but Holton held her. "Miss La Tossa," he began, "I came here because I love you—that is my only thought. I love you. I have loved you since I first saw you. I have spoken to you concerning the Americans as a man would speak to the woman he loves, with the whole truth in my heart. I have talked, since I saw you this morning, with scores of high officers, and I can tell you that what I have already said to you is the whole truth."

"Cuba is certainly and surely to be left to the Cubans. England, France, Germany, Italy—all great countries have been officially assured by the state department that it is to be. But first, order must be restored here and the wheels of government set going. To that end General Wood is to be appointed military governor, and in good time every single American soldier will leave this island. There is no doubt about that. Ah, Miss La Tossa, believe me! For as God is my judge, I have spoken only the truth."

"One moment," she essayed to speak. "Losing you is a price too great for me to pay—even when it involves saving my countrymen. No, I cannot lose you—and live. I do not wish to live. And so—you have not believed me. Every look, every word of yours tells me you regard me as a liar. So be it."

He moved away from the push-button and folded his arms.

"You are now at perfect liberty to press that button. I shall not interfere. I shall stay here and die with you. That is my wish. Life means nothing now for me."

A cry of horror broke from the girl. She stood swaying, surveying the two with staring eyes. Her gaze at length fastened upon Holton, standing there, his arms folded, his broad shoulders heaving, his dark, handsome face turned to her with an expression of great tenderness.

Something in his eyes, something magnetic, the power of his great love for her, the intensity of his emotions riveted her gaze to his face.

Slowly, in spite of herself, she crept toward him, fascinated.

"Ranee! How my arms have ached for you. How my heart has bled for you! Ranee! Come!"

With a low cry the girl sprang to him. In his powerful arms he caught her. She looked up at him and kissed her. Her hands caressed his face. She drew his head down once more to her lips.

And thus in the darkness, with potential death all about, love, the conqueror, triumphed.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Day of Peace.

Ten minutes, perhaps, had elapsed when Pierre, who had thoughtfully wandered away down the tunnel, reappeared with a warning. "Ahem!"

Holton, exalted to the seventh heaven of happiness, glanced at Pierre, and then striding to the Cuban, he seized him by the arm and led him forcibly into the tunnel again.

"Now then, Pierre," he laughed, "you stay here until I call, or I'll set you down on some of this dynamite and press the button."

So saying, he returned to Miss La Tossa and gave such an account of himself as a young man very much in love with a beautiful young woman may be expected to give.

A little later they made their way out of the building. Her pony was still standing where she had hitched it, but Cesnola and his horse were gone. At least, Holton assumed that Cesnola had gone from the fact that his horse had departed.

As they walked to the girl's pony, though, Holton, with a sudden exclamation, leaned forward. There, almost at his feet, lay the body of a man. The girl saw it almost at the same instant.

"What is it?" she asked tremulously.

"A man," was the solemn reply.

Holton lighted a match and bent over the body. Then he straightened up as though he had been struck in the face.

"It is Cesnola!" he whispered breathlessly.

"Cesnola!" She bent down until her face was close to the dead man, and her hand, reaching out, came in contact with a knife. This she withdrew, and, standing up, trembling, she held it toward Holton.

"You must get rid of this!" she cried.

"Rid of it? Why?"

"Because it is Pierre's knife."

In a flash Holton saw it all. Pierre, coming out had seen the spy waiting for the explosion. Filled with hatred for the man who had led his beloved Ranee into this situation, he had promptly paid off the score.

"Give me the knife," Holton wrapped the thing in his handkerchief, and in good season contrived to place it where it would never be found, which is getting a bit ahead of the story.

In the meantime the two wended their way toward headquarters, Holton leading the horse, the girl walking very close to his side. The recent ordeal, coupled with the discovery of the body of Cesnola, had unnerved her, and occasionally a dry sob broke from her lips.

Holton decided that, more than anything else, she needed lights, good cheer, and good food. So they went to the Venus restaurant, and there, amid all the brilliancy of its military patrons, the blushes returned to the girl's cheeks and the laughter to her lips.

After their meal Holton and the girl set out for the La Tossa estate, the girl on her pony and Holton on a horse he borrowed from one of the general's aides.

When they reached the estate it was nearly midnight. Ranee was delighted to find awaiting her a message from her father in Havana, assuring her that he was well, and that through force of circumstances he would remain in that city until the result of the present campaign was determined.

The girl wept over the letter as she handed it to Holton.

"Poor, dear father!" she cried. "I trust he is happy—as happy as—as—"

Holton crushed her to his breast.

As to the war, but little remained. The fleet of Cervara had been wiped out, and thus shorn of sea power, there was really little use in resistance on land. So it came about that peace was agreed upon by commissioners of the two countries.

It was on this day that Holton, with a long leave of absence, and many flattering official papers in his luggage, stood on the deck of a great transatlantic liner, looking down upon the crowd assembled on pier and bulkhead to wave farewell and Godspeed to friends and relatives who were hurrying to the continent to spend the last brilliant days of the waning summer away from the scenes of bloodshed and disease.

Close by his side, with her arm tightly locked in his, was a girl so radiant that she attracted the attention of everyone who passed the little group. She had just kissed her father good-bye and he was turning to leave the ship.

"And you, Thomas," he said, "will not be selfish. You will let my daughter come to me on the estate frequently."

"As frequently as she wishes," laughed Holton, "when I am doing my two years' sea service."

The father laughed and waved good-bye. But just before the ship sailed they made out his figure dashing to the end of the bulkhead.

"Father!" cried the girl. "what is Senior La Tossa held aloft an evening newspaper.

"Peace!" he cried. "Peace has been declared."

"She turned to Holton.

"Peace," she smiled.

Holton pressed her arm.

"Was there ever anything but peace—anywhere in all the world?" he whispered.

THE MARSHAL

CHAPTER I. A Prophecy

It was Francois who had his way. Pierre clattered for the story of the old witch and the horses. "Marie begged to hear about the white ducks and the princess," Thomas, at the top of his lungs, demanded the episode of the man who fell off the church steeple; each child wished a particular tale. Eight or dozen bright little Francois voices floated shrilly out into the garden, on a sunshiny morning of 1820 from the great entry of an old farmhouse in the valley under the Jura Mountains. The grandmother, sitting with her feet on the hearth, the tubbub, heard one more willingly than the others, for not only was Francois her best loved, but also the story he asked for was the story she liked to tell.

In the large kitchen beyond the open door the sun lay in patches on the bare scrubbed floor, and the mother moved swiftly, getting dinner ready against twelve o'clock, when the father should come in from the fields. It was the grandmother's hour to amuse the children. And today they were all pleading at once for a story, clapping hands, jumping up and down as if life depended on the choice. Suddenly, in the excess of enthusiasm, Thomas and Francois and Pierre were in a heap, sprawling at her feet on the earth floor of the entry.

"Stop, stop," said the grandmother. "Good children, do not do so fast, and she carefully sorted out the heap. "You, Francois, you are too quick—you will finish by hurting yourself. Stand here quiet, near me, and listen well," and, her arm about him, she drew the child close.

"You will tell my tale, grandmother—the tale of 'Napoleon Comes'?" he asked eagerly, and the grandmother smiled; it was what she wished to tell.

And now, with the faces of the children turned toward her, she pushed the big horn-framed glasses up on her brow, buried her knitting needles deep in scarlet wool, and folding her work carefully, laid it in the work-box. All five watched the ceremony, the methodical habit of a lifetime, and little Marie gave a trembling sigh as it ended. Only that sound broke the stillness, and in a moment the grandmother's voice began.

"Francois, if you pinch your brother you are not a good child, and can not listen to the story," she admonished.

"Be quiet, then, and you shall hear how the Emperor came to this house, and sat in the great room there—Napoleon!"

The five pairs of eyes followed hers as she glanced toward the door. "Yes, at that table he sat," the gentle voice went on, "but his great officers sat about him, with their uniforms and bright facings and gold buttons, and their swords clanking as they walked, and their three-cornered hats, waving with plumes, on their heads."

"Then, must I go back—I must tell it rightly, the story of Napoleon."

At the name the grandmother's head seemed to lift, and dignity was in her manner. The boy against her arm sat brown-eyed, and of uncommon size and intensity, fastened on hers, thrilled.

"Yes, grandmother, from the beginning," he said earnestly.

Smiling again, the grandmother began. "You must know, my children, that it was on a day in the month of May, in the year 1813, that he came. You, Lucie, and you, Pierre, and Marie were not born, only Francois and Thomas. Francois was the oldest, not quite three years old. The mother had gone to care for your Aunt Lucie, who was ill, and I kept the house for your father. It was the year of the great conspiracy, when the Emperor took all the men to fight, not only the strong ones, but the boys, and the old and infirm, if they might but drag themselves at the tail of a regiment."

So the few men who were not under the flag were sorely needed by their families, for it was necessary, for the women and children were not to starve, that some should stay to work in the fields. Your father was of the men who had escaped in our village of Vicques."

"One morning a man appeared in the village and said that Napoleon would pass this way within a few hours. No one quite believed, yet there was excitement, and the people stood about chattering, restless, when suddenly—I can see it as if it were yesterday—a half dozen horsemen clattered from the turn of the road up there and galloped down the street and on beyond. The crowd stared. Then every one talked at once; there was a great confusion. But at last a good old man, well known to us all, raised his hand for silence, and as we listened he told us that probably it was not the great army which would pass through Vicques, but only Napoleon and his staff. We were not on the road which led to Germany, and the great army was hurrying there. It was probably that the Emperor turned from his road to take the lists of men and of resources in the village."

There was a stir against the grandmother's arm. "Comment?" she asked. "Please, grandmother, don't tell what the old man said," Francois, she said. "Very well, then. Two young men were placed down the road to warn us, so that the men of the place might hide on the mountain to escape being taken for soldiers. All that day nothing happened, but the next morning toward half past ten as I prepared the dinner, there was a sudden noise in the street, and your father came in."

"My mother," he said, "Napoleon comes." "Outside I heard the neighbors calling the same two words. Napoleon comes—one called it to another. If the trumpet of the angel had sounded the end of the world, they could not have had more fear. Then your father kissed me, and knelt and said you, Francois, and Thomas, in his arms, and I saw tears, but he was brave—but yes, 'Courage, little mother,' he said, 'for me and for the babies. Courage!'"

"And at that your father, who was my little lad—once, you know, my dears, had gone, and I stood with an ache where my heart should have been, and for a moment I was stupid and could not think. Francois held to my apron, and I lifted Thomas. 'What are you crying about, naughty grandmother?' asked Thomas. So I dried the tears, and Francois began to say that he was sleepy. I undressed him and the baby and put them to bed for their nap in the little chamber which opens into the great one, and as I left them asleep and came again into the large room there, with its great oak table I stood a moment and thought of your father flying through the woods, and of how I was left to take care of his home and his children. And the thought of a duty to be done brought calmness."

"As I stood so, like a blow there was a rush of galloping horses in a shower of noise down the street, and my heart stopped, for the horses drew up at this house. So that I was still in the middle of the floor when the door opened."

Francois' hand was laid against her cheek. "The door into the great entry—that door there?" he demanded in a whisper.

"But yes, mon p'tit—that door."

Four pairs of round eyes followed Francois' gaze that turned to the panels of heavy oak.
